JAMES ABRAHAM FULLER

James Abraham Fuller was born November 8, 1861, at Lowell, in Lake County, Indiana. He was born on the old homestead in the cabin built by his grandfather, who came to Indiana in 1839.

In April, 1885, he came to Pratt, Kan., and a little later came to Seward county. With the exception of five years spent in Pratt he has resided in this county since that date.

He was married to Mary A. Moore at Pratt, Kan., May 6, 1891. Nine children were born to this home, one having passed away. The children are: Irene, Opal, Mildred Marion and John, of Liberal, Kan. Mrs. Gladys Hoskinson, Hugoton; Earl of Kaliville, Montana, and Clyde of Kansas City.

Mr. Fuller was of a family of eight children, three of whom are dead. Three of them, Jennie, Retta and Edward, reside in Indiana. One brother, Frank, of Chicago, was present at the funeral. Two grandchildren suffer the loss of a grandfather in his death.

Mr. Fuller died suddenly while visiting relatives at Yates Center, Kansas, Dec. 14, 1922.

Mr. Fuller was a pioneer in this country. He came to this county before there was a town of Liberal and for a time freighted across the plains to Fargo and Springfield from Dodge City. He has lived and worked and had a part in the building of a new civilization on the western plains. He took his share of the responsibility in the building of this town and county. He united with the Christian church in Indiana. In his death his family not only lose a faithful husband and father, but the community loses one of its old time citizens. A host of friends made through the years will feel a personal loss in his death.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Methodist church, conducted by Rev. A. E. Henry.
